

Mobilization for Change: Promoting and Defending Justice for Marginalized People. International workshop held at the Right Livelihood College, University of Bonn, Germany, 9-12 September 2018.

By: Mr. Mthulisi Moyo (DAAD PHD Fellow)

This was an international workshop held under the auspices of DAAD, Centre for Development Research (ZEF) and Association Development of Germany Services (AGdG) held in Germany from 9-12 September 2018. The workshop was composed of PhD students from the Global South at an advanced stage of their studies. The programme was composed of presentations from the Right livelihood laureates and field workers to share their experiences with the students. The PhD students presented their work through powerpoint and poster presentations.

The international workshop was structured as follows:

- Public panel discussion: Mobilization for change in Conversation with activist from Nigeria, Pakistan and Colombia.
- Environmental Sustainability and the enforcements of indigenous rights in Colombia.
- Best professional practice- How to become a successful activist, How to manage field work and field research (in a PhD project or development project).
- Plenary session: Practical experience from development workers.
- PhD thesis presentations and discussion.

